"London, Sunday, Oct. 20, 1918.

It's a pleasure to be able to sit down in a comfortable room for a quiet type-writer chat with you, after a day of strenuous sightseeing. We arrived in London last night at 8, from Glasgow, Ilad spent the night before in that city, and were given a rousing welcome by a handful of American sailors and soldiers there. We were the first American women they had seen, and we, of course, felt fortunate in having such an opportunity. They gave its a reception at the new "Y" building and later entertained us at the American club. The American consul and his wife were hosts at the latter place. I never had The American consult and his wife wore hosts at the latter piace. I never had so much to eat in my life! Really despite the rationing, the British have loads more to eat than we do. Good old American ham is on every menu, and is not considered "meat"—that is, you do not have to have a food card to get it. I had no sugar or sweets, except at the Glasgow "Y." until my trunk came this afternoon. Then I opened my own sugar for tea. After this I will carry it in my pocket. There is a coffee substitute which isn't had, and also a butter substitute. The bread is dark and heavy, but of a better flevor than outs. Portions are generous and meals are cheaver than they are at home. After a solid month of very poor food. I am thoroughly enjoying the meals here. These people are so tired, so weary and worn out with all the horrors they have seen, that I do not wonder at the serious faces. What I do marvel over, though, is their endurance. Many of the women in that dining room were in mourning, and nearly all the officers (there are no cits) were mourning bands on their sleeves. Nobody laughed, nobody smiled, and few people talked—in fact, that breakfast room was typical of the whole almosphere of London. ## BLOOD POISON. FESTERING SORES

Risings, Bumps, Swollen Glands, Pimples, Healed and Cured by Prescription C-2223.

Stop Paying Out a Lot of Money for Baths and Expensive Trips.

Prescription C-2223 is a liquid medicine which purifies and strengthens your blood—sending a flood of pure, rich blood to the skin surface—healing all effects of blood poison as swollen grands, risings, bumps, pimples, itching eczema, bone pains, rheumatic joints, mucous patches or sores in mouth. Prescrip-tion C-2223 has produced some re-markable cures of blood poison, even where all other medical treatment fails. It is carried in stock by most dose and directions are pasted on the bottle, as per the original prescription, given by a famous specialist. C-2223 not only purifies the blood, but drains out of your system all the poisons, humors and uric acids that cause the awful rains and blood, but drains out of your system all the poisons, humors and uric acids that cause the awful pains and sorces, also stops that burning itching of the skin, giving anyone a smooth, healthy skin as well as pure, rich blood.

Before the program opened Mrs. Meek announced that a series of these musicals would be given brough the winter as artists could be obtained, and spoke of Miss Marie Ludwig, the harpist who would play, as standing near the top in the list of American harpists, second only to one in Chicago and one in California One purpose of the concerts, Mrs. Meek said, was to bring the local and Fort Oglethorpe talent together

Mrs. Meek then introduced Henry . Hartman, supervisor of music a Fort Oglethorpe, who announced the numbers. Sergt. F. G. Kiburtz, who has already become well known as a pianist, played a waltz by Lack and a very beautiful number as an

Her program was as follows: "Prayer," Hasselmans; "Pastorale," Bellota: "Harp Eoliene," Godefried; "Valse Caprice," Chesric; Mazurka," Schnecker. The last number was given at the request of Mrs. Wellington Barnes, because it was a long-time favorite of her mother. Interspersed with these given numbers were several charming encores. The playing of Miss Ludwig was exquisite in every detail, her manipulation of the strings showed superior skill and training. It is seldom that a professional like Miss Ludwig is heard outside of the largest auditoriums, and those present counted themselves exceedingly fortunate in being the of the MacDowell club on this oc-

Sergt. Edward Stasser delighted the audience with his violin num-bers and made them realize that they were listening to strains from the bow in the hands of an experienced and scientific performer. "Gypsy Dance" and other pieces were rendered by the young man, who put the enthusiasm of real talent in his playing.

Private John Flynn was the vocalist for the evening. He sang "Absent" and "Requiem" in a very splendid vocal, accompanied by Miss Clara Trotter, but he captured the audience when he sang by request, "I'll Think of You."

Military Bugler Heralds Their Approach-Lunches for Buglers and Bands.

Feasting the bands and buglers from Fort Oglethorpe was the policy of the united war work campaign before the drive was started at 11:50 Tuesday. "These boys," said one of he committee chairmen, "had to get up at 5 o'clock this morning and we are serving them lunches before we start and are going to give them hot coffee after we come back."

Mrs. William Mahoney and Mrs C C. Nottingham headed the committees in charge of the lunches. About fifteen or twenty canteen workers, in their blue and white uniforms, assisted in serving. Representatives from the different church organizafrom the different church organizations which furnished the lunches were also present and lent assistance and good cheer to the happy luncheon time.

The noise began when the bands and those buglers got out in front of the manufacturers' association and commenced playing. The crowds gathered and listened.
